[?] The writer says that Edmund (Quincy?) has had a witty letter from Richard D. Webb. The letter told about his effort to have the Americanisms sifted out of his edition of "Kiss for a Blow "and then the first children into whose hands it was put were stumped at the first page." Wendell Phillips had been to see Charles Sumner, to whom Lord Morpeth had just written of the pleasure he and his circle had in the Liberty Bell. Garrison's lecture went off very well. «Boston» The writer went to see the Britannia with Warren Weston, but did not like it or the passengers. Fears that children might be trampled by the crowd watching the fireworks on the Common. H. G. Chapman met the painter William Page, who told him that he cured his bleeding lungs completely by the use of Dr. F. H. Ramadge's tube. Henry uses his tube, but the writer fears he will not persevere. Gives news of family, friends and pets. A Mr. Bancroft, who attended the picnic at Groton, reported "that he saw a Miss Weston there (Lucia) one of the finest girls in the world." « ? » The writer has been told by Deborah Weston that she has written a full account of the meeting. Adds to this account that Wendell Phillips heard Henry B. Stanton whisper, pointing to Joshua Leavitt: "It's worth a hundred dollars to us, to have him here." Edmund Quincy has been here and Samuel Philbrick called to see him about the Liberator Committee. The slaves' trial comes on Saturday. Only a few penny papers and the Courier said anything about the meeting. «Joseph Tinker» ~~Buckingham~~ said "everything handsome" about it, regretting that the city authorities were not there "to protect the citizens from these few disturbers." Mentions the calls of Andrew Robeson, Miss Ful[illegible] and Wendell Phillips, who is trying to have the Courier [illegible] a request from James B. Gray

.(New York). The writer would like to have "the will" returned. "I can hardly realise the meaness of the man. What could he have been thinking about." The writer has been miserable for three days with pain and various troubles. "I think one year more will bring me to the end of my string." The house seems deserted except for the immediate family. Comments on Seward's going to Fort Munroe to meet the Rebel Commanders. "I hope he won't commit any darned folly..." Remarks on the strangeness of Elisabeth (Bates) Vandeweyer's never having written a line to the writer.

Weyer, Elizabeth Ann Sturgis (Bates) Van der

Ms.A.9.2
Vol.32
No.90

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

.(London). The writer, having no estate agent, has been occupied with much business. "I felt sure you would take great interest in the Louvain proceeding." Refers to the "colossal" statue of her late husband, Jean-Sylvain Van de Weyer, erected in front of the railway station in Louvain. (Charles) Geefs, "the successful competitor for the execution of the statue," is now making a reduction in bronze for the writer. The subscription for the statue "was raised entirely in Belgium among the people." Geefs is the foremost sculptor in Belgium. In conclusion, the writer treats of family affairs.

[17 Henrietta St., Covent Garden, London] The writer says that George W. Smalley has arranged for the reporting of the Paris Exhibition and Miss Field did not apply soon enough to obtain a position as a correspondent. Thinks Miss Field should make a place for herself on the Tribune and wait until the Paris correspondentship is open. There might be an opening for another reporter in either the Paris or London offices. The writer is moving to a new address.

Bellamy, Joseph, 1719-1790; clergyman.

To the Reverend Mr. E. Wheelock, Lebanon.

["Bethlem"] Should not complain of life's heavy burdens. He has just returned from the Jerseys (?) and hopes that he is benefited in health. Mr. G. Tennant seems to be enthusiastic over the Moravians. So is Mr. Noble. Thinks the people at New York not inclined to religion. Has heard that Mr. Whitefield calls the Moravians "brethren". Has heard from Mr. Mills and also of Mr. Kent. Feels very close to him in brotherly love and esteem. A.L.S. 2p. 6 x 4 in.

«Boston» A printed circular entitled "Affairs of the American Board. Letter to a Missionary of the Board now in this country." The writer defends the veracity of his statement about the addressee made on p.216 of the book entitled "Relation of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions to Slavery." The statement was that, instead of taking "a decided and active part in opposition to slavery," the addressee "remained silent" while the Rev. Henry T. Cheever and the Rev. George B. Cheever urged immediate measures against slavery and the slave trade.

«Boston» The first installment of recollections entitled Boston in Slavery Times. Begins with the author's coming to Boston in 1834. Considers R. Hildreth's Archy Moore, the first Anti-Slavery novel, "equal in every respect to the famous 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' published fifteen years afterwards." Tells of the stand against Abolitionism by the American Bible Society, the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, etc. Relates incidents about Garrison, Angelina Grimké, and fugitive slaves.

[Boston] The second installment of the author's recollections of Boston in Slavery Times. Dwells on the heroism of Stephen S. Foster in defense of the fugitive slave, the sermons of Theodore Parker, rioters at Anti-Slavery meetings and the conduct of E. Quincy and W. Phillips. Tells of the illegal exclusion of spectators at trials of fugitive slaves, and the changing of the name of Belknap Street to Joy Street. Also the opposition of the churches to the Anti-Slavery movement as exemplified by the deletion of the manacled slave in the picture Christus Consolator by Ary Scheffer. The author heard Daniel Webster's speec[illegible] Boston on April 22,1851. Newspaper clipping. 1 p. [illegible] 4 x 5 in.

Boston. Third installment of Boston in Slavery Times. Deals with religious freedom and "humanitarian progress." Notes petitions for the abolition of capital punishment, specifically one by Henry C. Wright. Tells of opposition by the clergy to opening the Boston Public Library on Sunday, and the founding of the Free Religious Association on May 30,1867. Explains the hatred of the clergy for Theodore Parker. One minister said that Parker's illness and death was in answer to a prayer for just this result.

To "Dear friend" [Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman]

[Watertown, Mass.] The writer has determined not to comply with the addressee's request that he speak some evening at the fair. Explains the reason: the directing spirit of both the Mass. and the American Antislavery societies seems to the writer narrow and intolerant. Gives examples, as the assertion that no abolitionist can consistently remain in a pro-slavery church or party. Recalls that "the treatment a man differing from ourselves receives in our meetings, is such as to prevent anyone from wishing to bear it more than once." The writer's decision rests mainly on his seeing no reason why the Chronotype should be considered less fit as an advertising medium than the Post [illegible]las.
